YEAR IN REVIEW

2019

Featuring SurgeonsPAC highlights, successes, and future efforts
With support from more than 1,200 American College of Surgeons Professional Association (ACSPA) members like you, 2019 was a great year.

SurgeonsPAC continues to be recognized among the top health professionals’ PACs in Washington, DC. Fundraising and disbursement activities were successful as our PAC raised more than $470,000 and disbursed nearly $400,000 to congressional candidates, campaign committees, and other PACs. This includes support for all FACS members of Congress, several health professionals, and policymakers who serve on key committees with jurisdiction over health care issues. Of the monies contributed, SurgeonsPAC continues to support Democrats and Republicans who share the field of surgery’s perspective on health care-related issues, and those who are positioned to advocate for American College of Surgeons (ACS)-supported health policy priorities. As a friendly reminder, during the 2018 election cycle SurgeonsPAC achieved a 90 percent election success rate, and I look forward to reporting similar numbers this election cycle.

While several legislative successes have already occurred in the 116th Congress, strong support of ACSPA advocacy and political activities is essential. To continue to be effective in Washington, DC and across the country, we need the tools to help elect and build strong relationships with key members of Congress. SurgeonsPAC is one of our most valuable resources to continue strengthening surgery through political engagement on Capitol Hill.

Surgeon advocates recognized in this report are to be commended for their strong commitment to SurgeonsPAC. None of these successes would be possible without your ongoing support. Now is the time to help ensure that the ACSPA is well equipped to continue to fight for surgeons and surgical patients in 2020.

All the best,

William G. Cioffi, MD, FACS
Chair, ACSPA-SurgeonsPAC Board of Directors

“Advocacy is some of the most important, high-impact, and fulfilling work we can participate in outside of providing patient care. If we do not advocate for ourselves and our patients, someone else could dictate how we provide care and to whom. Ultimately, ensuring various surgical specialties and interests are represented at the federal level is critical to effect change. More importantly, building relationships with policymakers who understand important advocacy priorities is essential. Learning more about SurgeonsPAC’s mission and purpose, and considering an annual contribution, is something I urge all RAS members to consider.”

David T. Harrington, MD, FACS
President, Association of Program Directors in Surgery

“Serving as president of the Association of Program Directors (APDS), it is important to me that the College engage in advocacy work that protects the interests of both my patients and me. By contributing to SurgeonsPAC, ACSFA members have an opportunity to help educate members of Congress about issues of importance to the house of surgery with a united voice.”

David T. Harrington, MD, FACS
President, Association of Program Directors in Surgery

“All ACS members have an important role to play to help advocate for important surgical health policy priorities at the federal level. Through efforts led by the ACS Division of Health Policy (DAHP), surgeon advocates have an opportunity to take action to effect change. Essential tools and resources available via SurgeonsVoice and SurgeonsPAC make the engagement process easy and efficient for surgery’s voice to be heard in Washington, DC, and across the country.”

Ronald V. Maier, MD, FACS, FRCSEd(Hon), FCSHK(Hon), FCCS(Hon)
Immediate Past-President

“I have learned firsthand that policymakers do not always understand the challenges facing the surgical profession and patients, and rely on surgeons to provide that expertise. That is precisely why developing relationships with legislators is critical to making surgery’s voice heard at all levels of government. Utilizing ACS Chapters is a great way to find out more information about getting involved in advocacy, such as meeting with your legislators at home, making a financial contribution to surgical champions in Congress through SurgeonsPAC, and more.”

John C. Mayberry, MD, FACS
Idaho Chapter

“As young surgeons, we have an obligation to ensure the future of our profession and high-quality surgical care for our patients. For me, that means serving as a member of the General Surgery Coding and Reimbursement Committee (GSCRC) and participating in advocacy and political activities available to Young Fellows throughout the College and with my state chapter. I challenge my peers to become more involved and help make an impact. I encourage every surgeon to consider learning more about federal and state advocacy issues and joining SurgeonsPAC.”

Jason P. Wilson, MD, FACS
General Surgery Coding and Reimbursement Committee

Julia R. Coleman, MD, MPH
Chair, RAS Advocacy and Issues Committee
“As a urologist and Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, I fully recognize the multitude of issues facing the medical community that could affect a surgeon’s ability to continue to provide quality patient care. As a former state representative, I worked to find solutions to address the growing opioid epidemic, medical liability reform, and other important health care-related issues. As a newly elected member of Congress, I look forward to working with the ACS to keep surgical health policy priorities at the top of the congressional to-do list.”

Rep. Greg Murphy, MD, FACS (R-NC-3)
GOP Doctors Caucus

“The American College of Surgeons and its members are a critical resource for lawmakers and their staff. Healthcare policy is complicated, and particularly for my colleagues without medical backgrounds, having a go-to team of experts to turn to has helped guide many important decisions this year. I have enjoyed my discussions with Washington state surgeon advocates who have served as an invaluable resource, and look forward to our continued work to help improve the health care system for physicians and patients.”

Rep. Kim Schrier, MD (D-WA-8)

2020 is our year to effect change.

The following guidelines will help shape SurgeonsPAC fundraising and disbursement strategy:

- Broadening our donor base
- Enhancing education efforts
- Ensuring surgery’s voice remains strong for years to come through Resident and Young Fellow participation
- Increasing transparency
- Leveraging leadership involvement

Together, we are changing the way Congress considers surgical patient care.

Help support SurgeonsPAC. In Washington and at home.

Visit SurgeonsPAC.org to learn more about contributing, frequently asked questions, SurgeonsPAC leadership, and more.

Help educate your peers about ongoing fundraising activities and recruitment efforts.

Remind your colleagues that current election cycle disbursements to candidates are available online at surgeonspac.org/discharements.aspx.

Encourage surgery trainees and young surgeons to get involved early.
